The Real Problem with James Prendamano Podcast

The Real Problem with James Prendamano is a weekly podcast that explores the intersection of politics, power, and human behavior through a lens of honesty and accountability. Hosted by real estate executive, educator, and reform advocate James Prendamano, the show challenges traditional narratives by moving beyond headlines to expose the systems, incentives, and psychological patterns that shape public life in America.

Each episode combines raw monologues, in-depth interviews, and unfiltered conversations with experts, policymakers, and thought leaders. Prendamano's approach blends analytical rigor with empathy, inviting listeners to examine how institutional failures often reflect personal and societal conflicts.

From the halls of government to corporate boardrooms and everyday communities, the podcast dissects how the pursuit of power and control mirrors the struggles within individuals and organizations alike.

Unlike partisan commentary, The Real Problem does not assign blame...it seeks understanding. The show's central goal is to ignite awareness and inspire personal responsibility, encouraging audiences to look deeper at the moral, ethical, and emotional roots of modern challenges.

By confronting uncomfortable truths about leadership and integrity, The Real Problem with James Prendamano positions itself as a reckoning for anyone who believes real change begins with honest reflection and the courage to question what we accept as truth.
